4 part c.

1. Investigating on how the average number of stops across UK & Wales have changed from the year between 2006 - 2020 for each ethnicity. This can be done by getting an average number of stops from different geography across the uk and plot it against the year and look at the relationship between them. combined Line graph with individual lines with points for each ethnicity would be a good choice to look at how the numbers have changed over time.
2. Investigating on how stop-and-search rate changes for the past 10 years on each ethnicity across UK & Rates. This can be achieved by displaying x = year, y = rate (mean from stop and search rate per 1000 across UK & Wales) and displaying how this 2-axis vary with different ethnicity. combined Line graph with individual lines with points for each ethnicity would again be a good choice to provide a better visual comparison between each ethnicity.

3. Review how the stop and search rate by British Transport Police (BTP) changes in the past 10 years. In the data set, there are data recording "All - including BTP" and "All - excluding BTP". With this specific data set, we can estimate how the rate of stop and search by BTP changes for the past 10 years. This can be achieved by calculating the mean of rates for these 2 variables and plot it against the past 10 year period. Bar chart would be a good use here to allow visual comparison every year.

Showed insights on the change in stopping numbers between each ethnicity and also across the years of 2006-2020 in UK & Wales. Ethnicity "All" in here represent that the data did not specify on what ethnicity is the individual when they were collected, i.e. "All" may include all the other ethnicity. Overall, we can conclude that number of stops had all peaked its highest at the year 2010, and dropped to the lowest numbers in 2018 for all ethnicity. However, the trends are all heading up again. Further question or investigation can be made in here, e.g. is the increase in number of stops is related to crime activity. We can notice that comparing to ethnicity of "Asian" and "Black", ethnicity of "White" has the highest number of stops across UK & Wales through out all the years in the data set. Furthermore, there is also a sharp drop between the year of 2014-2017 for "White" and "All". Please be aware that this data did not take in account of the population, hence this is likely due to population-proportion problem.

Stop & search rate changes over the year of 2010-2020 across UK & Wales suggests that all ethnicity (apart from "Other") follow a certain trend over the years of 2006-2020, in particularly a trough / low numbers in rates of stop and search / population per 1000 people in the year between 2016-2018. Ethnicity of "Black" shows a much higher number of stop and search across all years compared to all other ethnicity, i.e. "Black" ethnicity gets stop and search more frequently compared to other ethnicity in account of population. Ethnicity "All" in here represents they stop and search rates that do not hold any info of the ethnicity of the person and hence been placed in this category.

Estimate stop and search rates by British Transport Police (BTP) in year 2011 - 2019

an estimate stop and search rate per 1000 population by the BTP across the UK and Wales in the year 2010 - 2020. There is a clear downtrend from 2010. This means that stop and search by BTP has much decreased over the past 10 years. The downtrend of rates seem to flatten or fluctuates between 3-5 between year 2015-2019 but with an obvious drop in year 2020. This huge drop in year 2020 is likely due to Cov-19 pandemic causing less searches by BTP and also less people going out due to Cov-19 restrictions.
